

COOKIES POLICY

The cookies are small text files which are installed in the equipment from which our website is accessed. They can store the identification of the user visiting the web and of the sites through which the user navigates. When the user (you in this case) visit us again the cookies are used to identify you and re-establish your preferences and navigation configuration. If the user does not authorise the use of cookies, some services or functionalities of the website may not be available.

We want this website to offer a good and easy-to-use service. For this purpose, we use cookies of Google Analytics. These cookies allow us to:

- Statistically analyse the information to which the users access in our website. The data collected may include the activity of the user's browser when he/she visits us, the path that the users follow on our website, information of the visitor's supplier of Internet services, the number of times that the users access the website and the behaviour of the users on our website (webpages visited, forms completed, etc.).
- Identify the users who visit us from an invitation of an associated website or a sponsored link.

You can obtain further information on Google Analytics at www.google.com/analytics/. To monitor the data collection with analytical purposes by Google Analytics, you can access <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout?hl=en>

You can withdraw your consent for the use of cookies removing them by using the options provided by your browser.

If you wish to receive additional information on the activity of the advertising companies on the Internet and on how to delete your data from the records of these companies, we recommend you to visit www.networkadvertising.org.

You can configure your browser so that it previously informs you of the possible installation of cookies. You can also opt for the cookies to be removed when you close the browser, the equipment or the device. You can find further information on how to do it at:
